Local Man Gets Term In Jail for Supplying Liquor to Indians

Charles Benson, who occupied a boathouse off Bridge Street in this city, will have to spend six months in jail for supplying two Duncan Indians, R. Joe and C. Peters, with a bottle of liquor. In 1913 Benson was convicted on a similar charge and served four months.

The Indians will come before the court in Duncan on Friday, charged with being in possession of liquor contrary to the Indian Act. The information is being laid by Mr. Thomas O'Connell, constable under the Indian Department, who secured the evidence in the case yesterday.

The evidence is said to show that the Indians went to Benson's place and bought a bottle of liquor. They had a drink before starting for Duncan in their automobile, and on the way consumed nearly all the remainder of the bottle.

Demand Made That Legislature Take Steps To Curb Ku Klux Klan

"Wherefore we urge your government to take all necessary steps to restrain this seditious movement and bar its membership from all elected or official positions under the Crown."

No Need Said to Exist

Previous to moving his amendment, Mr. Browne made some fairly extended observations relating to the history and general record of that organization in the United States. The Klan, he said, appeals to the mentally deficient and has had an appeal for the despotic United States civilization. Behind the organization was "the hideous foetry of the nightgown parade and its vulgar melodrama."

He thought it well for those who contribute the $10 membership fee in this organization to know that the field kliegles who organize the Klan receive $4, and the king kliegles $2. As high as $40,000 a year is made by these officials, and the average income is $2,000.

Mr. Browne remarked that from the legislative point of view the most serious thing about the Klan is that it holds itself in the Canadian soil, in this organization to know that the record in the past has included murder, kidnapping, brandings and floggings.

It was important, he said, that the Legislature sit and study the organization to exist in British Columbia that is against Catholics and Jews. There was no need for such an organization in the Province and the Legislature should see that one is not brought into being.

All Clues Followed

Mr. Browne dealt with a variety of matters other than the proposed activities of the Klan in the Canadian soil, including the Janet Smith case. It was not the intention of the Labor Party, he said, to use this case for political purposes, but rather as an indication that the administration of justice here favors the man with the long purse. The one thing definitely known was that the crime or suicide occurred in the home of a wealthy man and that the authorities were anxious that there should be no scandal in Shaughnessy Heights. Consequently a "hush" policy was adopted.

Attorney-General Manson rose to make a disclaimer on behalf of his own department. "I can assure the honorable member that all clues were followed to their uttermost in so far as the department was concerned," he said.

"My references were to the actions of the coroner and the undertaker," Mr. Browne explained, going on to speak of the delays of justice in the Book case. It was a remarkable thing, he said, that the accused in this case was still at liberty twelve months after the offence was committed.

Impressed With Report

Complaining that the members of the Legislature were the last to receive copies of the educational survey, Mr. Browne confessed that he had been impressed with the report made. It was a serious thing, however, that at this period of the world's history it was necessary for the Provincial Government to spend $10,000 to find out what education really was. Coming to the Doukhobor controversy, Mr. Browne provoked laughter by remarking that it was "a dangerous experiment to place a Christian community in the district of Grand Forks."

One of the causes of the Doukhobor trouble was due to the success of these people as farmers and co-operators when others had failed, he thought. The occurrences in the Grand Forks district, he regarded as having been the most regrettable instances of the kind occurring since the trials held in connection with the Nanaimo coal strike.

State Insurance Suggested

Mr. Browne differed with Government supporters who have expressed the view that the Mothers' Pension Act would not be a success until it had been made a Dominion matter. As for the Workmen's Compensation Act, it was generally unsatisfactory to both employers and employees. Employees, instead of receiving the relief to which they are entitled are treated as though they had no right to compensation.

"I have come to the conclusion," said the member for Burnaby, "that this does not meet the situation and that the only solution of the problem lies in a universal method of State insurance." Such a system, he said, would not be revolutionary, and the time would come when it would be adopted.

Minimum Wage Law Proposed

Dealing with the unemployment problem the member for Burnaby said it was absurd to keep on inducing more people to come to this country "when we are putting up signs in Canada telling them to keep away."

An effective solution to the Oriental question, Mr. Browne suggested a minimum wage law for men. With such a law in force, employers would take white men in preference to Orientals.

Touching on the unemployment in the mining districts due to the lessening demand for coal, Mr. Browne said that Dominion, Provincial and Imperial governments should try to devise some new uses for coal such as the creation of power at the pits' mouth. The facilities of science in our universities should study the matter of protecting our coal against the inroads of fuel oil, he averred.

WASHINGTON, Nov. 11.—A corn crop of 3,013,380,000 bushels, one-fifth larger than that of last year and the sixth in the nation's history exceeding the three billion bushel mark, was announced today by the Department of Agriculture in its November preliminary estimates.

Province Lags Behind, Says Mr. H. B. Thomson

Former Food Controller Sees State of Washington Forging Ahead While B.C. Falls to Rear

VANCOUVER, Nov. 11.—"What we British Columbia should grapple with is to try and find how we are to help the Empire and ourselves by getting ready and having a policy, plans and organization to take care of the people who want to come here and settle and be producers," said Mr. H. B. Thomson, food controller of Canada during the war, in an address to the British Columbia Manufacturers' Association today. Mr. Thomson recently returned from the Old Country and as a leading economist of this country his remarks were listened to with keen interest.

Mr. Thomson drew for his examples, conditions in the state of Washington, which, he said, has the same conditions and natural resources as British Columbia.

He quoted figures liberally to show the progress made in the past few years in Washington, which twenty years ago, he said, almost wholly depended upon lumbering, fishing and farming. He pointed out that in 1909 the products of that state were valued at $200,325,738, of which $138,434,000 was manufacturing. Last year's estimate of the manufacturers of the state of factory production was $1,100,000,000.

The manufacturing interests of Washington, by this tremendous growth, said Mr. Thomson, had a payroll which exceeded $23,000,000 yearly. Washington, he added, actually had more manufacturing plants than Connecticut. In the last nine months fifty-nine new factories had been opened in Seattle. There had been an average of six new factories every month since the first of the year.

Imperial trade, Mr. Thomson pointed out, was very closely allied with Empire settlement for "trade follows the flag." He alluded to trade possibilities and said that Canada's wheat production alone in 1923 could have supplied the whole of Great Britain's requirements. He gave figures to show the vast market for Canada's products in Great Britain.

Luxor Excavators Remove Tutankhamen's Body From Tomb

I believe Carter has already in his hands the most magnificent manuscript that has come down from antiquity, a papyrus roll more than 100 feet long, the first royal book of the dead to be discovered. It is embellished with hundreds of paintings in color by Egypt's greatest artists in her supreme period of decorative art.

Tomb's Finest Legacy

First glances at this work, Tutankhamen's guide to the other world, indicate that it may prove to be the tomb's finest legacy. When published in facsimile it will reveal the wonders of the school of painting founded by Akhen. Tutankhamen's father-in-law, a school which reveals the best work of the greatest periods of painting.

In the marvelous inner coffins Carter has hoped to find the crown of Upper and Lower Egypt, to be handed to King Fud as an emblem for himself and future kings of Egypt.

The outside of the last and most splendid coffin has now been cleaned of the black resinous layer formed by the funeral libations poured on it by the mourners. The gold figures of the gods and other ornamental designs are declared to be superior to any similar work found in Egypt.

Nothing Wrong, Merely Error, Says Minister

$1,204,202. 1912, $1,149,344. 1913, $1,210,000. 1914, $2,319,246.84, and 1915, $2,414,000. In addition there had been a special warrant drawn in 1914 for $115,000.

Mr. R. H. Pooley, Conservative Leader: "That was the sum of a war expenditure."

Plans had been prepared for the University in 1913 which entailed a cost of $7,725,000, and Dr. Rutherford, and contracts were let for the framework of the science building. When the Liberal Administration had taken the affairs they found the framework of the building erected and a bill of $22,000 for architects' fees against the Government. This they had assumed, and continued to employ the firm of architects to whom the previous Government had awarded the work on a basis of merit.

Contract Explained

It was on the recommendation of the architects that the contract had been let on a cost plus basis, but in the ordinary sense of the word, it could not be considered as a real cost plus contract, for the stipulation was that ten per cent would only be paid to $600,000, while the estimate for the building was $125,000. The contractors had to supply the equipment and even the scaffolding necessary. What the contract was in reality was that the contractors were employed to do the work for $60,000. There had been many changes made in the design and these changes made it advisable to have the contract one such as the architects recommended. In addition there had been a saving of $21,500 in sales taxes through the Government making the purchases of materials necessary to the work.

The first bids called for the library building had been too high, and changes were necessitated in structure which resulted in a saving of $12,000, said the minister.

Evidence Suggested

There had been some difficulty in connection with the gas and electric services, he said, and at one time the B.C. Electric Company wanted $150,000 to put them in, but after negotiating with the company and threatening to install a separate gas plant for the University, the cost had been reduced to $22,526, and this would ultimately be recovered, or the greater portion of it as services were connected up with the development of the University lands.

In connection with the University lands upon which $400,000 had been spent, added the speaker, $90,000 a year for two years had been spent in Winter work there in order to alleviate the unemployed situation.

He would suggest to the Public Accounts Committee that the architect be called and that in addition, Mr. Walter Leek, the heating contractor, be also asked to attend. Mr. Leek had been awarded the contract by the old Government and had been asked to carry on. He thought that the committee would finally agree that the Province had obtained value.

Local Realtors Seek Betterment In City Methods

Real Estate Board Names Committee to Study Civic Affairs—Want More Business Men for Council

Plumbers' Bill Opposed

The Victoria Real Estate Board, at its fortnightly meeting yesterday in the Chamber of Commerce, appointed a committee consisting of Messrs. Fred Landberg and David Leeming, with power to add to their numbers, to study civic affairs and bring in a report to the organization on betterment in civic government methods.

Mr. Fred Landberg suggested that the special committee interview the legislators and seek action permitting adoption of the city manager plan of civic administration.

Ex-Ald. J. Hebbden Gillespie advocated action on account of the difficulty experienced in getting business men to serve as aldermen. He expressed regret that the records of the past years have not shown a percentage of aldermen who must be classified as either politicians or retired.

The board appointed a committee to meet the city police commission shortly and explain the additional protection sought for vacant property.

The realtors were aroused yesterday on being informed that an application by the plumbers' union to the Legislature for authority to enter any house for the purpose of examination of the plumbing installation and to enforce any condemnation order.

A resolution was adopted by the board appealing to the City Council to oppose the granting of such special privilege and asking the Victoria members in the Legislature to oppose the bill about to be introduced by the plumbers' union. A committee was appointed to make inquiries concerning the various clauses of the proposed bill.

Advisory Board Has Under Consideration Resolutions for House

The Advisory Board of the Farmers' Institute of B.C. met yesterday with the consideration of resolutions forwarded to it from the Institute which met here last week. The Model Sheep Protection Act, which has been passed upon by the Institute, formed the subject of a large share of the discussion that took place.

The hope in connection with this Model Act is that it will be adopted by the Legislature and made to operate everywhere in the Province. If this is done it is felt that a very decided step will be taken in the matter of ensuring an adequate protection to sheep raisers throughout the Province.

Later on the Advisory Board will meet the Agricultural Committee of the Legislature and present its views on the subject.

Can You Sleep All Night?

Reason of Bladder Trouble?

Mr. Jones was not really responsible for the trouble of the House today to indulge its taste for persiflage. The member for South Okanagan was seriously concerned for the position and prospects of the dry belt. His pride in the beauties and the more material assets of the Okanagan Valley, "The Garden of Western Canada," was dampened in a manner of speaking—by the fact that the dry belt was too dry. Not too dry in a certain, invidious sense—Mr. Jones being reputed to be in favor of dryness in that sense—but too dry in the sense that the garden was in need of more and cheaper water. It was a question of water, was not in that mood. The House was more in the mood to note the intersection of the Hon. First Minister, between whom and the member for South Okanagan the amount of love that is lost is not worth looking for. Mr. Jones said that certain roads in his riding were not fit for the common use of goats. The Hon. First Minister was naturally reminded that his honorable friend must have traveled that road himself. "The member in question," said the member for Mary Tod Island, "is a elephant."

The debate is in the doldrums. But there are rumors that it is to be revived and that it will be revived. Hon. Attorney-General Manson proposes to take the last trick at the helm next Friday. He will ask the House, in its usual and conscience, to bear witness that he knows no more of Wong Poon Sing abductions than it is proper for the first law officer

The Session

The Nature of Debates on Addresses—Why the More They Change the More They Are Still the Same—And Yet You Never Can Tell—In the Doldrums—But Hopes of Getting Out—When Hon. Attorney-General Manson Will Declare His Innocence of Many Things

The Press Gallery.

The classical allusions, and some other, appropriate to the parliamentary scene are supplied in this House by Mr. A. McCree, of Vancouver; Mr. Tom Uphill, of Fernie, and the honorable and gallant and irrepressible member for Alberni. In contemplation of the present state of this House, it would probably be reminded of the French saying, and they would be likely to allege that the more it changes the more it is still the same. The nature of debates on humble addresses in reply to speeches from the throne, for instance, would give them aid and comfort in this opinion. The nature of such debates does not encourage the rash impulse of innovation. The honorable member to the right of the Speaker, the Government member on a pedestal of honor. The honorable member to the left of Mr. Speaker follows in a speech which pushes the Government off the pedestal of honor. Another honorable member of the right carefully sets it up again. Another honorable member of the left promptly knocks it off again. So it goes. So it goes for about two weeks. And then the member for Alberni comes along with a breezy speech which floors everybody. The ascertainable laws governing such debates would almost seem to be those which guided the Medes and Persians, so far as mutability is concerned. And yet, you never can tell.

Nobody could have told this afternoon, for instance, when Mr. Frank Browne, Labor member for Burnaby, rose in his place, that all the sting of his quiet and otherwise academic speech would be in the tail. If it. He opened on the note of pessimistic certitude. His view of the Government was that that body of unappreciated statesmen could only be viewed with alarm. His view of the Opposition was the legendary Irishman's view—it was as good as the Government, and a something, a slight worse. He thought the malignancy encounter now going on in the House was nothing but a sham fight. He ranged over a wide field, from mothers' pensions and unemployment to vaccination and the Janet Smith case, and as in all these diverse matters he thought that the least said about the Government-Conservative Opposition attitude to them was soonest mended. And then, just when honorable members were feeling thoroughly ashamed of themselves and altogether miserable, Mr. Browne suddenly mentioned the Ku Klux Klan, and everybody set up and took notice. Mr. Browne begged to move an amendment to the humble address, which he regretted that a "fraudulent, alien and terrorist organization known as the Ku Klux Klan" had invaded the ordered ways of public life in this Province, and which practically called upon the Government to outlaw the said organization. As to which amendment, as the member for Mary Tod Island commented, there are likely to be wigs on the green before the session is done.

Mr. Tillesen Opens Up-to-Date Rabbitry

Well-Known Victoria Merchant Launches Out Into Rapidly Growing Industry

Another addition to the pedigree rabbit-rearing industry, which is gaining such a foothold on Vancouver Island, was made about two months ago when Mr. Arthur G. Tillesen, well-known Victoria merchant, sold out his business at the corner of Yates and Broad streets, and launched out into the scientific raising of pedigree rabbits.

Mr. Tillesen, who has had close to forty years practical experience of stock-raising, has established at his home, on the corner of Myrtle Street and Belmont Avenue, one of the most modern rabbitries to be found. Two buildings at present house the stock, which is valued at several thousand dollars.

Animals Protected

The hatches are arranged in three tiers, with separate drainage pipes. The rabbits are protected from dampness and draughts by double floorings and special type of construction. Ventilation is taken care of by means of a system of openings which run along the top of the buildings and which may be closed in times of severe weather. The whole is electrically lighted and may be heated by electricity should the occasion warrant.

Many valuable pedigree rabbits comprise Mr. Tillesen's stock, including Chinchillas, Flemish Giants, Blue Flemish, New Zealand Reds and other breeds. Some are maintained for their fur-bearing qualities, others for meat, while many are raised especially for the market for breeding purposes.

Pelts in Increased Use

The fur-bearing animals are of special interest. The growing use of furs for women's coats, dresses and other uses has created an increased market in which pelts of the rabbit plays an important part. Many of the most valuable kinds of furs have been produced in its artificial grades from the humble rabbit.

Mr. Tillesen issues a general invitation to the public to look over his quarters at any time.

Fascists Obey Mussolini

ROME, Nov. 11.—The Fascists have obeyed Mussolini's orders that no reprisals be taken for the plot to assassinate him, says L'Impero, extreme Fascist organ, but nothing could stop them in the event of another attempt from staging a St. Bartholomew's night to destroy all the enemies of Fascism. The papers urge re-establishment of capital punishment and its infliction upon Tito Zaniboni and "the other traitors" implicated in the plot against the Premier.

of the Crown to know. The House will do a variety of things, according to rumor. What it will actually do is still on the knees of the gods, and perhaps it is also in the incalculable decrees of party caucuses. However, for the moment it is all sub judice, as Mr. Tom Uphill says, and it is not proper to say anything more about it. Although, if it were ten times before sub judice than it is, it would not prevent the lobbies and the corridors of this House from humming with it.

Meanwhile, though attorneys-general may come and go—as this House has already been reminded they have a way of doing under the aegis of Liberal Governments—the good old P.G.E. goes on forever. Mr. Creevy, of Vancouver, does not think the P.G.E. ought to go on forever in the way it is going now. He told the House so this afternoon. Particularly, he thought it ought not to go on to the Peace River Country, not, at any rate, if it was to be taken there by this Government. He had considered the way of this Government with all ways, and he had come to the conclusion that if this Government undertook to take the P.G.E. to the Peace River, then its last state would be worse than its first. Mr. Creevy coined a bon mot when he proposed a "tax on errors." He said this would be a pleasant change from the present practice of letting the "errors tax us." The number of right things to do with the P.G.E., as formulated so far this session, was further added to today by Mr. Munn, of Lillooet, who, mindful of the first duty of members to their constituents, and remembering that some of his own are resident in Squamish, suggested that the right thing to do with the P.G.E. was to finish it from Squamish to Vancouver. "Which," said the erudite member for Mary Tod Island, "is what several poets have already referred to as the shadow of a dream."

Mr. Tillesen Opens Up-to-Date Rabbitry

Well-Known Victoria Merchant Launches Out Into Rapidly Growing Industry

Another addition to the pedigree rabbit-rearing industry, which is gaining such a foothold on Vancouver Island, was made about two months ago when Mr. Arthur G. Tillesen, well-known Victoria merchant, sold out his business at the corner of Yates and Broad streets, and launched out into the scientific raising of pedigree rabbits.

Mr. Tillesen, who has had close to forty years practical experience of stock-raising, has established at his home, on the corner of Myrtle Street and Belmont Avenue, one of the most modern rabbitries to be found. Two buildings at present house the stock, which is valued at several thousand dollars.

Animals Protected

The hatches are arranged in three tiers, with separate drainage pipes. The rabbits are protected from dampness and draughts by double floorings and special type of construction. Ventilation is taken care of by means of a system of openings which run along the top of the buildings and which may be closed in times of severe weather. The whole is electrically lighted and may be heated by electricity should the occasion warrant.

Many valuable pedigree rabbits comprise Mr. Tillesen's stock, including Chinchillas, Flemish Giants, Blue Flemish, New Zealand Reds and other breeds. Some are maintained for their fur-bearing qualities, others for meat, while many are raised especially for the market for breeding purposes.

Pelts in Increased Use

The fur-bearing animals are of special interest. The growing use of furs for women's coats, dresses and other uses has created an increased market in which pelts of the rabbit plays an important part. Many of the most valuable kinds of furs have been produced in its artificial grades from the humble rabbit.

Mr. Tillesen issues a general invitation to the public to look over his quarters at any time.

Fascists Obey Mussolini

ROME, Nov. 11.—The Fascists have obeyed Mussolini's orders that no reprisals be taken for the plot to assassinate him, says L'Impero, extreme Fascist organ, but nothing could stop them in the event of another attempt from staging a St. Bartholomew's night to destroy all the enemies of Fascism. The papers urge re-establishment of capital punishment and its infliction upon Tito Zaniboni and "the other traitors" implicated in the plot against the Premier.

Can You Sleep All Night?

Reason of Bladder Trouble?

Mr. Jones was not really responsible for the trouble of the House today to indulge its taste for persiflage. The member for South Okanagan was seriously concerned for the position and prospects of the dry belt. His pride in the beauties and the more material assets of the Okanagan Valley, "The Garden of Western Canada," was dampened in a manner of speaking—by the fact that the dry belt was too dry. Not too dry in a certain, invidious sense—Mr. Jones being reputed to be in favor of dryness in that sense—but too dry in the sense that the garden was in need of more and cheaper water. It was a question of water, was not in that mood. The House was more in the mood to note the intersection of the Hon. First Minister, between whom and the member for South Okanagan the amount of love that is lost is not worth looking for. Mr. Jones said that certain roads in his riding were not fit for the common use of goats. The Hon. First Minister was naturally reminded that his honorable friend must have traveled that road himself. "The member in question," said the member for Mary Tod Island, "is a elephant."

High School Memorial Unveiled by Lieutenant-Governor W. C. Nichol

Impressive Ceremony Carried Out Yesterday Morning Following Armistice Day Services in Auditorium—Memorial Wreath Already Placed at Foot of Tablet

There was an impressive simplicity in the unveiling yesterday morning of the High School memorial to masters and old boys who gave their lives in the Great War.

The ceremony took place in connection with the Armistice Day commemorative exercises. Following a short programme in the main auditorium, in the presence of a big gathering of pupils and of relatives of those whose sacrifice was being commemorated, His Honor Lieutenant-Governor W. C. Nichol unveiled the bronze bas-relief which has been placed on one of the square columns just inside the main entrance of the High School.

The actual ceremony of unveiling was witnessed by only a very small group, comprising, in addition to His Honor (who was attended by Mr. H. J. B. Muskett, H. Rev. C. de V. Schofield, Bishop of Columbia; Mr. H. P. Smith, principal of the High School; and the Corps of Cadets in command of Major Wilby; Miss Agnew, representing the Women's Yacht Club; and Mrs. McKicking, regent of the Lady Douglas Chapter; and Miss Macleod and a High School student, representing the teaching staff and student body.

The memorial, executed by Mr. Earle Clarke, drawing instructor at the High School, is a bronze female figure, modelled in classical lines, symbolizing the High School, Alma Mater, supporting under her left hand an oval shield on which are inscribed the names of students and masters who made the supreme sacrifice in the late war; while in the right she holds a little bunch of the native wild lily, erythronium, the symbol of purity. There is grace in every line of the figure and its draperies.

The whole memorial measures roughly seven feet in height, the figure itself being five feet, six inches. In the rectangle at the base are Rupert Brook's lines: "These laid the world away, poured out the red, sweet wine of youth." And in small shields at the right and left, respectively, are inscribed "The world" and "Might be free."

Armistice Programme
The Armistice Day programme began at 10:45, when His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor arrived, accompanied by Mr. Muskett. He was received by a guard of honor supplied by the High School Cadet Corps, Major Wilby in charge. A trumpet sounded the salute.

As soon as His Honor reached the platform the National Anthem was sung, followed by "O God, Our Help in Ages Past," after which Bishop Schofield led the recital of the Lord's Prayer.

Still standing, the audience observed the two-minute silence.

The Lieutenant-Governor spoke briefly, but with great feeling. This

"The eggs I bought from you yesterday weren't fresh."
"It's your own fault."
"How so?"
"I offered them to you last week and you wouldn't have them."
Kasper, Stockholm. (A.D.)

School teaching staff; another placed there by a student for the scholars; one from the Women's Canadian Club, placed by Miss Agnew, and Mrs. McKicking's from the Lady Douglas Chapter.

Following is a list of the eighty-five names which appear on the memorial tablet:

Memorial Unveiled
In conclusion His Honor expressed the hope that there would never again occur in the lifetime of any of those present an event of such tragic horror as that in which these men, one-time students and masters of the High School, had given their life and their blood.

The reading by Bishop Schofield of the Eighty-Fifth Psalm, "Unto Thee, O God, Do We Give Thanks," was the last incident in the formal part of the programme, in which the whole gathering participated. His Honor and Bishop Schofield and Principal Smith left the platform and proceeded to the entrance hall, where the Lieutenant-Governor unveiled the memorial. The Cadet guard of honor presented arms while two Cadet officers stood with reverent arms beneath the plaque. As the Lieutenant-Governor released the cord, and the flag fell away from the face of the bronze memorial a trumpet sounded "The Last Post."

Those Present
Among those who occupied seats on the platform at the service were His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mr. H. J. B. Muskett, H. Rev. Bishop Schofield; Mr. George Jay, chairman, and other members of the school board; Principal H. F. Smith; Mr. E. J. Willis, Superintendent of Education, and Mrs. Willis; Dr. E. B. Paul, principal of Victoria College; Mr. Earle Clarke, the sculptor; Mrs. R. B. McKicking, Mr. E. Cunningham, Miss Agnew, Mrs. H. P. Hodges, Mr. H. O. Litchfield, Inspector Sullivan, Mr. Beckwith, Mr. Morehead, Mr. Maunsell, and the following seven members of the High School staff, present or past, who saw service overseas: Capt. Boyd, Mr. C. H. Haverstock, H. E. Cunningham, Mr. Claude Campbell, Capt. Breadner, Major Barnett Harvey and Major Wilby.

Platform Decorated
The platform was decorated in memorial laurel, which formed the big wreath leaning against the table, as well as the border. Small Union Jacks and the red, white and blue were mixed with the dark leaves.

Visitors remained in the auditorium until the students had filed out, and were then given an opportunity to see the memorial, at the foot of which there had already been placed several wreaths and bouquets. Among the former were ones placed there by Miss Macleod, for the High school; another placed there by a student for the scholars; one from the Women's Canadian Club, placed by Miss Agnew, and Mrs. McKicking's from the Lady Douglas Chapter.

Following is a list of the eighty-five names which appear on the memorial tablet:

Stone From St. Paul's Sent to U.S. Journalists

COLUMBIA, Mo., Nov. 11.—Sir Eames Howard, British Ambassador to the United States, arrived here today to present a memorial stone from St. Paul's Cathedral, London, to the University of Missouri School of Journalism.

Two tourists from across the "hering pond" at the entrance to St. Paul's Cathedral were pressed for time. "You look at the outside," said one, "and I'll look at the inside—then we can get the whole thing over in a few minutes."

Turning Leftovers into savory dishes

The French people—famous for thrift—used to say that they could feed six people with what the average family on this side of the Atlantic threw away.

It is almost inevitable that there should be things left from yesterday—yet the remains of roasts and steaks, the spoonfuls of vegetables, the food that has lost its taste, are no longer wasted, nor are the "scraps" turned into "stews."

The sprightly "OXO" CUBES with their supreme flavour of prime beef, have come to the rescue of those who want to be sensibly economical. Now you find "OXO" CUBES in thousands of homes and the French have changed their ideas about our extravagant cooking.

Minced Meat on Toast

2 cups minced beef (left-over steak or meat)
1 cup boiling water
1 tablespoonful flour
1 tablespoonful butter

Mince the meat, removing all gristle and fat. Dissolve the cubes in the boiling water. Blend the butter and flour and stir quickly into the dissolved cubes. Pour over the meat and let simmer two or three minutes (long enough to cook the flour and heat the meat). Pour over six or seven slices of hot toast.

Where any gravy is left over, use but one "OXO" DEEP CUBE dissolved in ½ cup boiling water and add the gravy. Season to taste.

Our Free Cook Book tells you how to do it

Many other attractive ways of utilizing left-overs are included in the new "OXO" COOK BOOK.

The recipes are simple and practical—the results will worth your trying. You will be delighted in the new edition, that are economically made with "OXO" CUBES. Write for a copy to Geo. Limited, 315 St. Andrew St., Montreal. It will be mailed to you FREE and postage paid.

Two Members Talk on P.G.E. Road Problem

Squamish-Burrard Link Is Commended as Early Necessity by Member for Lillooet

Mr. Creery Doubts Building Into Peace

An appeal for all parties in the House to get together and seek to solve the P.G.E. problem on the basis of common sense and in the best interests of British Columbia was made in the Legislature Wednesday afternoon by Mr. A. McCreery, Provincial Party member for Vancouver, in the debate on the reply to the speech from the Throne.

Mr. A. E. Munn, Liberal member for Lillooet, also spoke on the P.G.E. and advised that it be extended from Squamish to Burrard Inlet and that the terminals be constructed, and while he favored the extension of the line from Quinal to Prince George he was opposed to it being built into the Peace River district at this time.

Squamish-Burrard Link
Mr. Munn declared that the P.G.E. question was really a very serious situation confronting the Province, and while some of the members were not affected in their respective localities by it to the same extent that he was, it was a problem that was of paramount interest to British Columbia and must be faced this session. Reference was made to the people who had been induced to come to British Columbia and take up land on the promise of transportation facilities being provided.

He congratulated the member for Fort George (Mr. Perry), on his presentation of the P.G.E. situation, and would agree with him to the extent of saying that the line about to be constructed to Prince George and to Burrard Inlet, but he did not think that the time was ripe for the larger undertaking of building to the Peace River country. Later, if it was possible to obtain Federal aid, he thought that the original idea of building to the Peace River should be carried out. With a wealth of detail Mr. Munn told of the resources along the line of railway. He mentioned the mineral wealth of the lower end of the line, and the possibilities for agricultural development about Pemberton Meadows, where, he said, farmers were obtaining returns of $1200 an acre from potato crops. This district with proper drainage would permit of 25,000 acres being added to the 5,000 acres already available for agriculture.

There were great potentialities in the dry belt along Lillooet, and in the timber limits along other parts of the line, which would be realized when the means of transportation were fully available. At the present time the lumber industry was being hampered in its efforts to compete with other more favorably placed mills for the prairie trade by reason of the back haul necessary to get the shipments to eastbound tracks.

Timber Possibilities
There were great areas of timber untouched. One of these was between Quinal and Prince George. It was inaccessible at the present time, but would be available when transportation was provided. The estimated merchantable timber in this great stand was seven billion feet. On present royalties the return of such wood would amount to $5,000,000 to the Provincial treasury, which would be more than sufficient to construct the road to Prince George. In addition, other revenues would accrue to the public treasury as a result of the building of the line.

The B.C. Electric proposals to develop Bridge River hydro-electric power would be a great boon to the country, provided that the P.G.E. was completed to provide transportation.

Saw Log Export
Mr. Munn at some length dealt with the exportation of logs from British Columbia, declaring that the export commission had not permitted any logs to go out of the country when there was a demand for them in British Columbia. He quoted figures of the timber exported, saying that from Crown-granted lands in 1924 the exportations had amounted to 150,000,000 feet of a total cut of $17,000,000, from Dominion lands there had been no exportation from the cut of $51,000,000, while a total cut of 1,340,000,000 feet of timber from licensed lands only $5,696,900 feet had been exported.

In the nine months of this year, he said, 125,000,000 feet had been exported from Crown lands of a total cut of $85,000,000, and but $4,000,000 feet had been exported from licensed limits out of a cut of $10,000,000 feet. Mr. Dick Hudson (Agriculture) questioned the correctness of the figures, asking if the Minister of Lands would state them to be correct.

Mr. Munn-I obtained them from the chief forester.
In concluding, the speaker said that the eight-hour day law seemed to be working out satisfactorily, while he also commended the manner in which the Workmen's Compensation Board was being operated.

Mr. A. McCreery, who followed Mr. Munn, said that every person would agree upon the desirability of finding a solution to the P.G.E. problem, which was becoming an incubus on the life of the Province, and every person would also admit that the country through which the route of the road passed was one of great potentialities.

He sympathized with the member for Fort George in his desire to see the line completed, for he realized that the interior country was peopled with brave men and women who were doing the best they could to maintain themselves while waiting for the railway to be completed, but he could not see that the solution at the present time was in undertaking the further expenditures which would be necessary to build into the Peace River country.

Confusion Worse Confounded
Sorely, he said, the member for Fort George could not be serious in suggesting that the present Government undertake such a work, after the

Britain Marks Armistice Day With Solemnity

Greater Feeling Displayed on More Extended Scale Than at Any Time During Past Seven Years

Service Held at Cenotaph

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Great Britain observed Armistice Day today with greater solemnity and on a more extensive scale than at any previous time since the cessation of hostilities seven years ago.

The principal services in memory of those who fell in the Great War were held at the Cenotaph, where King George and his three sons at one minute before 11 o'clock laid wreaths in the presence of Queen Mary, the Queen of Spain, and other royal and prominent persons.

Premier Baldwin and the members of his Government; former Premiers Lloyd George and Ramsay MacDonald; Lord Balfour, the British High Commissioner, and the High Commissioners of the other Dominions, with detachments of the naval and military and air forces, formed a hollow square about the memorial, outside of which the thoroughfare was jammed with representatives of the general public.

American Legion Represented
At the invitation of the British Legion, five members of the American Legion participated in forming the hollow square, and after the King and Princess had wreathed the tomb, the United States veterans deposited a floral offering.

Exactly at 11 o'clock, the hour at which firing ceased on the Western front seven years ago, a salvo of guns announced the beginning of two minutes of silence throughout the Empire. This was observed in England to a greater extent than at any time since 1919. Street and railway traffic, work in the factories, and all other activities ceased as part of the nation's tribute.

A slight rain fell, reminiscent of the weather experienced on the morning of November 11, 1918, when Britain observed in silence the hour of the actual cessation of hostilities.

Canadian Veterans Meet in London

Hold Armistice Reunion in Scottish Regiment Armoury, Former Victorian Presiding

LONDON, Nov. 12.—About 300 former Canadian soldiers, veterans of the Great War, assembled tonight in the armoury of the London Scottish Regiment for an armistice reunion. A few attended in invalid chairs and some walked with the aid of crutches. Brigadier-General Garret Hughes, son of the late Lieutenant-General Sir Ran Hughes, presided and was supported by Prince Arthur of Connaught, an old member of the Canadian staff, Colonel A. C. Amery, Secretary of State for the Dominions, and General John Seely, who commanded the Canadian cavalry brigade in the Great War.

Prince Arthur, in the course of his reminiscences, referred to "the peculiarly offensive character" of the Canadian soldiers during the time he had the privilege of being on their staff.

Olden Days Recalled
Sir Hamar Greenwood recalled his old days in the Canadian militia, when the men were supplied by the British authorities with arms which had been rejected for use in the Crimean War. Sir Hamar made an interesting revelation when he stated that he believed himself to be the oldest Canadian militiaman now serving with the exception of the Hon. Peter Larkin, the Canadian High Commissioner of London, who, he understood, enlisted in 1873 in a Montreal dragoon regiment.

Hon. Mr. Larkin corrected him by declaring that the corps was well honored.

At any rate, Sir Hamar continued, he had just been struck off the strength of the British Army, so if a war came again he would be liable to be called up with the Canadians.

Toward the close of the meeting the buglers sounded "Last Post," and Hon. Mr. Larkin placed a wreath on the Scottish memorial in the room as a tribute to the fallen from their Canadian comrades in the war.

Decline to Parade With Pacifists

American Legion and Civic Association of Boston Refuse to Fraternize With Slackers

BOSTON, Nov. 11.—Rather than fraternize with the pacifist and radical organizations, the American Legion and many civic associations declined invitations to participate in today's Armistice Day parade.

The Kiwanis and Rotary Clubs were among the organizations refusing to parade.

There were particular objections to the Women's International League for Peace and Freedom; the Fellowship of Reconciliation; the Fellowship of Youth for Peace; and the League for Democratic Control.

These organizations have been retained. In spite of protests, because the Rev. George Lyman Payne, chairman of the Armistice Day committee, believes they are committed to world peace in principle.

Sponsored by Churches
The parade was sponsored by the Federation of Greater Boston Churches. Governor Fuller refused to designate a military man as chief marshal.

Members of the First Army Corps were instructed not to parade in uniform and the Greater Boston Council of Boy Scouts withheld permission for members to march.

In commenting on the peace parade, United States Senator Butler said that organizations had taken advantage of Armistice Day, which belongs to the veterans alone, to express views not in accord with the meaning of the day.

The forerunner of the typewriter was a machine, patented in England in 1714, which could "impress letters on paper as it writing."

Landscape Architect Will Plan
Alma College Grounds

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Nov. 11.—A new departure was made recently by the faculty of Alma College, when they secured Miss S. M. Bond, landscape architect of Stanstead, Quebec, to become a member of the college staff for one month for the purpose of planning the college grounds and ravine, according to approved landscape gardening ideas. Miss Bond will also teach the pupils at the college the correct methods of arranging the flowers indoors and out, and the decoration of grounds, and may also give a series of extension lectures on these interesting topics while in St. Thomas. Alma College is one of the first institutions in Western Ontario to introduce such a course into the yearly curriculum. The principal, Dr. P. S. Dobson, feels highly grateful in securing Miss Bond, one of the few women in Canada in this profession, to take charge of the department. Miss Bond is a graduate of an English university and had valuable practical experience at Stanstead, where her work is said to be outstanding for its delightful flower combination and the originality of the plans.

The Lonely House

By MRS. BELLOC LOWDNES

THE STORY SO FAR
LILY FAIRFIELD, a young English girl, on a visit to her mother's step-sister, the Countess FOLDA, at her place, La Solitude, Monaco. Lily arrives, unexpectedly, before she is expected, and the Countess seems somewhat put out about it.
HERCULES POPEAU, made up as a Frenchman, who has helped make Lily comfortable on her journey.
ANNE PEARL, another traveling companion, captain in the London Scottish.
CRISTINA, sister-in-law of Count FOLDA, who acts as a servant at La Solitude.

CHAPTER IV
Lily Settles Down

Suddenly the huge cat, which had been the first living thing seen by Lily Fairfield at La Solitude, came noisily into the kitchen.
"Here is Mimi," exclaimed Cristina. "He is so faithful, so intelligent! He follows me about like a dog." She stooped and picked up Mimi. "May good-day to Mademoiselle!" she said caressingly, but, as Lily drew near, the cat suddenly spat and swore.

Cristina put the creature down.
"He is jealous," she said. "He perceives that I am going to love Mademoiselle." And sure enough Mimi walked away with offended dignity.

"Before we go upstairs would Mademoiselle like to see the dining-room?" asked the old woman.
And then the girl had another of the surprises which seemed to be always meeting her in this curious French house—for she thought of Monaco as being part of France; which, of course, it is not. Turning the key in a door at the end of the corridor, Cristina stepped aside while Lily walked through into what struck her as a gloomy, and yet, in its way, a splendid room, and she realized suddenly that it was the windowless building she had seen from the lawn.

Through a circular skylight there fell a softened light on the beautiful old tapestry, moth-eaten in places, with which the walls were hung; and in the centre of the room was a round table, now spread with a lace tablecloth. It was set for three, a lace doily marking each place, as did also three sets of exquisite old cut-glass goblets of varying sizes. In the middle of the table was a gold vase containing a bunch of brilliant colored blossoms, such as may be bought anywhere along the Riviera for a few pence. They made a charming note of color in the large room, and gave an air of festivity to the well-arranged dining table.

The only other furniture in the apartment was a set of six tapestry-covered chairs, and a yellow marble sideboard on gilt legs.
On the sideboard were now set out three green and gold dessert plates, with Venetian glass bowls on them, and two graceful, delicately-painted dessert dishes were placed ready for fruit.

Lily was rather surprised to see that there were no fewer than six cut-glass and colored decanters filled with various wines and liqueurs, standing in a row behind the fruit plates. Cristina stood by, looking at her expectantly.

"What beautiful tapestries, and—and what a lovely tablecloth!" said Lily at last.

She felt bewildered. She had never seen anything quite like this before. It was the sort of dining table she would have expected to see laid out in a palace.

"I suppose I must now lay a fourth place," said Cristina slowly. And then she added, "Mademoiselle was not expected till the day after tomorrow."

Perhaps the Count will put off the visitor.
"Who is coming to dinner—a lady or a gentleman?" asked Lily pleasantly.

Cristina hesitated a moment—and then "A gentleman," she answered.
The old woman led the English girl back into the corridor. A short, ladder-like staircase led to the upper floor of the villa. The story above was divided, like that below, by a corridor which ran right down the middle of the house.

Cristina took up the bunch of keys which hung at her girdle. "I sleep there," she said, pointing to the first door to the right, "and Mademoiselle here."
She unlocked the first door to their left, and ushered Lily into a room which impressed the girl as curiously dark and gloomy. But she soon saw the reason for this. The one window gave on to a stretch of deep, barren, heath-covered hill. Only by craning her head right out of the window could she see the tiny, dark, and no less what he was like.

Within the room, an old-fashioned mahogany bed of the low, curved Empire shape stood against the left wall. By the tiny fireplace was a shabby armchair upholstered in some kind of discolored green material. There was no hanging cupboard; only a row of wooden pegs on the door. A pair of splendid brocade silk and velvet curtains, looped up by the window, gave a touch of luxury to the room. The room looked very unhomelike, and Lily suddenly felt sad and despondent. "I think I will try and get a little sleep, so will you kindly call me, Cristina, when you think I ought to get up."

Cristina went over to the window and drew the heavy curtains together, and then she slipped noiselessly from the room.

When Lily awoke, four hours later, it took her a moment or two to realize where she was.

Jumping up, she drew back the curtains and opened the window wide. Twilight was falling, and the stretch of heath-covered hill looked dark, almost forbidding. She felt suddenly cold, and shivered as she drew back into the barely-furnished room.

Then she did not help herself, quickly and methodically, and after a moment of hesitation, put on a white gown. It was the first time she had worn anything but black since her aunt's death.

And then Lily, her thoughts, herself that it was rather strange that Aunt Cozy had said nothing about either Uncle Tom or her own late step-sister. The girl could not help feeling that her unexpected arrival had put out both Aunt Cozy and old Cristina very much. But Cristina had quite got over it, somehow. Lily felt that she and Cristina were going to be friends.

She was not quite so sure about Aunt Cozy! To tell the truth, the Countess was already a disappointment to Lily's recollection of her. She did not sufficiently allow for the great difference between her two selves—that between a shy, romantic child, and an observant, grown-up girl.

With regard to the man she knew

Mr. and Mrs. Elwood B. Hosmer Have Arrived in Montreal From Paris

Mrs. Hosmer, formerly Miss Mildred Adams, of Denver, Colorado, whose marriage to Mr. Elwood B. Hosmer took place in Paris, France, last May. Mr. and Mrs. Hosmer have now taken up their residence in the Acadia Apartments, Sherbrooke Street West, Montreal.

she would be expected to call Uncle Angelo. Lily was quite unprepared, for she had never seen him, and had no idea what he was like.

At last she opened her door and looked with some curiosity up and down the corridor. Four closed doors to her right evidently led into rooms which must have that wonderful view over which the Countess had waxed so enthusiastic. Lily was sorry Aunt Cozy hadn't given her one of these front rooms. It would have been nice to have had that beautiful view spread out before her instead of only the bare mountain.

She walked lightly down the staircase, and then she waited a moment, wondering a little what she ought to do.

At last she opened the door which she knew led into the drawing-room. It was empty, and the blinds had all been drawn up; probably one of the windows had been left open, for the room no longer felt stuffy.

She walked over to one of the windows, and then she could not help giving a little gasp of surprise, for, walking so softly that she had not heard the cat-like footsteps, someone had followed her into the room and now stood, silent, by her side—
It was—it must be—Uncle Angelo!

Esquimalt Women Hear Reports Read

Regular Monthly Meeting of Institute Discusses Proposed War Memorial Again

The regular monthly meeting of the Esquimalt Women's Institute was held in the institute room of the St. Paul's Parish Hall, Esquimalt, Tuesday last, with Mrs. Booth, president, in the chair.

Mrs. Niosi, the Institute's delegate to the district conference of Island Institutes, gave a very interesting report of the splendid work which is being done by the Institutes all over the island and especially by the newer and smaller institutes in the remote districts. She also touched upon the splendid and helpful addresses which were given by various speakers at the conference. Mrs. Booth supplemented the report, giving a brief outline of the whole of the conference programme, at the close of which she made an appeal to the members to grant a donation towards a family on Valdez Island who were rendered homeless and destitute by fire, which the members very generously responded to by granting a donation of $10.

The delegates were thanked for their very interesting and comprehensive reports. After some discussion it was decided to drop the matter of domestic gas service for Esquimalt as it was felt that it would be too costly an undertaking.

War Memorial

It was decided to proceed with the proposed Esquimalt war memorial project, and a public meeting is being arranged, which will be held in the St. Paul's Parish Hall, Monday next, at 8 p.m., when all public organizations and every public-spirited citizen will be asked to attend and to cooperate with this institute for this worthy project.

A donation of $2 was granted towards the British Columbia potato show and seed exhibit.

The annual meeting of the E.W.I. will be held in December of this year.

Appeal Gets Response

Mrs. Wells, of Constance Avenue, was voted upon and accepted as a member of the institute, and Mrs. Williamson, a new member who was present, was given a very hearty welcome.

Mrs. Booth, who is the convener of Esquimalt for the collecting of funds for the proposed solarium, gave a brief outline of the object of the Dominion-wide appeal for funds which will be made next month, and her appeal for volunteer helpers for the collection to be made in Esquimalt was readily responded to.

Hostesses for the social hour were Mesdames Nicol, Brown, Hansen, Cave and Miss Stevens.

Principals Will Be Asked to Meet

Saanich Trustees Want School Leaders to Consider Improvements to Teaching

The Saanich School Board last night at its meeting at the Royal Oak Municipal Hall decided to ask the principals of the different public schools in the municipality to meet occasionally and discuss among themselves improvements which might be made in the teaching system in Saanich, and might assure a uniformity of subjects taught and supplies in the schools.

The trustees considered providing in the present schools suitable pictures to increase the love of art by the pupils.

It is proposed to change the name of the North Dairy School to Oak Ridge School. The board will ascertain whether it can legally effect this alteration.

Improvements to the grounds at Cloverdale School, including removal of rocks and trees, doing necessary concrete work at the rear of the school, and enlarging the playground, will be made shortly. The heating facilities in the basement will be improved. It was also decided to make improvements to the grounds and buildings at Gordon Head, Mackenzie Avenue and North Dairy Schools.

The board will prepare a set of rules and regulations covering the duties of the janitors at the various schools.

Mr. Jones Declares Irrigation Is Vital Need of Interior Farmers

Member for South Okanagan Pleads for Additional Relief—Twits Government for Failure to Give Cabinet Representation to Vancouver as Promised

Greater and immediate action on the part of the Government towards assisting farmers of interior irrigated land, was urged in the Legislature yesterday by Mr. J. W. Jones, Conservative member for South Okanagan, during the course of his address in the debate on the reply to the King's Speech. Mr. Jones made a brief review of the history of the irrigation system in British Columbia from the time of its inception until the present time, and compared conditions here with those which existed in irrigation districts of the United States.

In 1923, he said, the interior sections had produced an exceptionally good crop. Last year the harvest had been but sixty per cent of that of 1923, and this year the crop would not be more than eighty per cent of the volume of 1923. While the Government had extended some assistance to the interior growers in irrigation, it had done nothing to assist them in the marketing of their produce. The law which had been drawn to protect the growers from the dumping of surplus commodities produced in the United States had proved of no value. On the contrary, he said, it had reacted to the disadvantage of the British Columbia growers.

The newly-enacted trade treaty with Australia had sacrificed the farmers of the country, the speaker declared. The dairying industry in British Columbia had been particularly hard hit through the radical decreases made in the Canadian tariff against importations of Australian butter and cheese. Pasturemen had been grossly discriminated against, he declared, through the admission of Australian eggs free of duty, and fruit growers had been sacrificed by the decrease in the duty on fruit, pulp and canned fruits.

Mr. Jones denied a statement made by Premier Oliver that British Columbia apple growers were this year sending a large consignment of apples to Australia. Not a single case had been sent to Australia, he would be this year, said the speaker. An embargo against Canadian apples had existed in Australia for the past three or four years and there was no indication that it would be lifted. When the Australian treaty was being drawn at Ottawa, no steps had been taken by either Premier Oliver or Hon. E. D. Barrow, Provincial Minister of Agriculture, to protect the interests of British Columbia.

Hon. Mr. Barrow: "If you are not aware of the action taken to secure the lifting of the embargo against Canadian apples in Australia, you are not very closely in touch with the fruit industry."

"I ask you what action has been taken?" Mr. Jones asked. "There have been any steps taken they have certainly proved very ineffective. The British Columbia Government was apparently indulging in a British Winkle sleep while the Federal authorities were bartering away the rights of British Columbia farmers."

Hon. Mr. Barrow did not further reply.

Reverting to irrigation, Mr. Jones declared that the difficulties which the farmers were now facing were extremely serious and if the Government failed to advance the necessary assistance, many would be forced to give up their land. The Government had spent a little over $2,000,000 on irrigation, but, owing to costs exceeding estimates, the rate against the irrigated lands had advanced from $5 an acre to $15 and $20 an acre. Low prices obtained by the growers for their produce had also been a big factor in developing the present serious condition. Many of the people had been unable to meet the levy made against them, and the number of delinquents would be increased this year.

Defends Irrigation

The United States, he said, had spent a total of $181,000,000 on irrigation. The average cost in that country had been high, but the results obtained had proved that the big expenditures had been justified. He urged that the results obtained in British Columbia had also justified the expenditure made by the British Columbia Government, and more than that, justified a greater measure of relief being given to the farmers.

The farmers of the Province were too important a factor in the prosperity of British Columbia for the Government to slight, he said, to a great degree responsible for the growth of the city of Vancouver, and they were responsible in large measure for the prosperity of that city. They put large sums into the treasury of the Province in the way of taxes, and they constituted a home market that was an exceedingly valuable one. Last year, he said, the fruit growers used eighteen million feet of lumber for the construction of boxes.

The South Okanagan member offered three solutions of the difficulties which the farmers now faced. First, the Province might assume one-half of the $2,000,000 advanced and thus relieve the growers from the excessive annual levy. Second, the Government might assume ownership of reservoirs and main canals. Third, the Government might rebate the interest charges on the capital invested, amounting to $120,000 annually.

The growers were not seeking to repudiate their debt, Mr. Jones explained, but they were asking for a readjustment. He felt that it was only fair that the Province as a whole should assume some of the cost of the irrigation system, although Hon. Mr. Pattullo, Minister of Lands, had declared that such action would be "unmoral."

Hon. Mr. Pattullo objected to the speaker's statement that he had held, he said, that it would be unmoral for the Government to place any part of the irrigation cost of the shoulders of the taxpayers at large if those who benefited repudiated the debt or any part of it.

Oliver Scheme

"Was it unmoral for the Minister of Lands to spend nearly four million dollars in a land settlement scheme at Oliver?" asked Mr. Jones. "That money was paid by the taxpayers at large and very little of it will ever be recovered. Was it unmoral for the Government to spend millions on the Roma reclamation scheme—millions which the general public will be forced to pay—part of them at least."

Praises Mr. Woodward

Mr. Jones recalled Premier Oliver's promise that the city of Vancouver was to be given Cabinet representation, and pointed out that to date the promise had not been kept. In Greater Vancouver there were over 300,000 people, more than half the population of British Columbia, yet the plums of office had been handed out to members from outside ridings. The reason for the Premier's failure to keep his promise to the people of the Terminal City was simple, he declared. The Government did not dare to open any one of the Vancouver seats for a by-election. Offers had been made to take Vancouver members into the Cabinet without portfolio, but such proposals had not been received kindly by the Vancouver people. Mr. Jones paid a tribute to the senior member for the Terminal City, Mr. Charles Woodward, in regard to the latter's insistent demands upon the Government that election promises should be made good. The Vancouver senior member had shown pluck and courage in his stand, and the Premier would be further ahead if it had more such representatives.

Another reason why Vancouver had failed to obtain Cabinet representation, he said, could be found in the impossibility of the Vancouver members to decide amongst themselves which one should get the "plum."

A Deaf Ear

Relative to the contribution made by Premier Oliver to the address in reply to the Speech from the Throne, Mr. Jones said that he had seldom heard a more barren address. He had managed to live through an hour and a quarter of it, but search as he would, he could find nothing in it regarding any policy of the Government. The Premier had "raged" through his favorite topic, freight rates, but the subject had been worn so threadbare that nobody could get any more "kick" out of it. After all, he said, what had the Premier accomplished in the way of better freight rates besides piling up a huge expense account for the people of British Columbia to pay? Premier Oliver had promised many times that he was bound to make progress because he had the ear of Right Hon. Mackenzie King, the Prime Minister, but he fancied the Premier must have had access to Mr. King's deaf ear.

No intimation had been given in the Speech from the Throne that the Government had any plans for the reduction of taxation in British Columbia, Mr. Jones recalled, although the reduction was the one subject that all the people were interested in.

Attention was drawn by the speaker to the expenditure of public money on preparing for the coming year in British Columbia University, Point Grey, and the failure of the Government to make more than a few scattered sales. Hundreds of thousands of public money had been spent in preparing 105 acres, but to date the total sales had been sixteen residential lots for apartment houses, three miles of paving, eleven miles of sewerage, water mains and sewers. At the same time the Canadian Pacific Railway Company had opened up some property in the Shaughnessy Heights section for sale and had sold over $100,000 worth.

Charges Against Government

During the past year, the speaker said, many grave charges had been made against the Government, and as a result the confidence of the people had been lost. The speaker predicted that there would be very little information regarding the Legislature after the next Provincial election.

Grave charges had been made during the past year against the Department of the Attorney-General, relative to the Wong abduction case, when an offer had been made to Hon. Mr. Manson by a responsible man to give him information regarding the crime. Mr. Manson had merely shrugged his shoulders, and had the information, Mr. Jones declared. The remark drew Hon. Mr. Manson immediately to his feet. "I demand a withdrawal of that statement," he said. "It is utterly untrue."

"I secure my authority from a newspaper report of the testimony given in court by Mr. Benkler, K.C.," Mr. Jones returned.

Hon. Mr. Manson reiterated that the statement was false. Mr. Benkler had put in entirely erroneous construction on the occurrence and he had made that clear when he had testified in the trial of the Robinson case in Vancouver a few days ago.

"I am going to speak on the Wong case next Friday," Mr. Manson added, "and I would request that you refrain from commenting on the case until I have explained my position and reviewed the details. I intend to go into the subject very thoroughly."

Mr. Jones exhibited a copy of the Seattle Post-Intelligencer, of recent date, carrying a story of the Robinson trial and pictures of Hon. Mr. Manson.

Baby Eczema
Soon Disappears with the use of Dr. Chase's Ointment

Only mothers who have witnessed the suffering of their babies when tormented by eczema fully appreciate the remarkable soothing, healing effects of Dr. Chase's Ointment.

Most babies at one time or another fall victims to skin irritations, chafing of the skin or eczema. For this reason it is a fine habit to always have at hand when bathing baby, a box of Dr. Chase's Ointment. You never know when roughness and redness of the skin is going to develop into something more serious. A touch of Dr. Chase's Ointment keeps the skin smooth and velvety and prevents serious skin affections.

There are scores of uses for Dr. Chase's Ointment. Once it finds its way into the home it is soon considered indispensable.

Manson and the senior Robinson. The speaker considered that the reputation of British Columbia and Canada as a whole had not been in any degree enhanced by the publicity given the case.

Search Continues For Missing Boys

Runaway Students of Shawnigan Lake School Have Been Missing Eight Days

No trace of the two students of Shawnigan Lake School, Aubrey Bastin, of Brentwood, and Stanley Melrose, of Vancouver, who have been missing since November 4, had been found by the Provincial Police up to a late hour last night. The public is being asked to co-operate with the authorities in locating the two youths.

The boys disappeared from the boarding school nine days ago while on a trip to a minor offence, Aubrey Bastin is sixteen years of age and Stanley Melrose seventeen years. They packed their grips on November 4 and, sharing six dollars between them, left school unseen. It is believed that they may be working in one of the district lumber camps.

Both boys are dressed in khaki and sweaters, the uniform of the school. It was at first thought that their disappearance was an escapade, but the long absence puts a serious aspect on the incident, and is causing considerable anxiety to their parents.

Seeks to Stop Entry Of Mental Defectives

In line with his desire to lighten the heavy expense placed upon the taxpayers of British Columbia through the necessity of caring for mental defectives, notice of motion was made in the Legislature yesterday by Hon. William Sloan, Provincial Secretary, of his intention to seek closer co-operation between the provincial authorities of the Canadian provinces and with the Federal authorities, with a view to preventing the entry into Canada of all mentally defective people. Mr. Sloan believes that the provincial authorities should have more jurisdiction over the entry of people.

Robinson's Testimony

Oscar B. V. Robinson then took the stand.

On March 7, the witness testified, Commissioner McDonald, Chief Murdoch and Sergeant Kirkham had come to his office and discussed the advisability of trying to extract from the Chinaman certain information.

"They said they were taking it up with the police commissioners. I was told a few days later by Murdoch that the Point Grey Police Commissioners had decided to abduct the Chinaman and that $1,000 from a contingency fund had been set aside for the purpose. Chief Murdoch told me I was hired at a salary of $300 a month to abduct the Chinaman."

On March 9, he testified, he was definitely hired and given $300 for expenses.

After the Chinaman had been taken on March 29, witness said he had accompanied Chief Murdoch and told him: "Everything is all right. I have the Chinaman."

The witness stated that he was not present when the release was made. He stated that the money he received for his work totalled about $1,100.

Under cross-examination Robinson, told of being hired by the Point Grey Police Commission through Chief Murdoch, to perform the abduction.

William Robinson, son of Oscar B. V. Robinson, told of the part he played in the kidnapping, the confinement of Wong Foon Sing and the release of the Chinaman. He stated that Chief Murdoch, McDonald and Kirkham were all present when the Chinaman was taken from the Point Grey house early on the morning of May 1.

Labor Party Seeks Its Candidates for Municipal Election

The Victoria branch of the Canadian Labor Party is considering the advisability of adopting candidates for the forthcoming civic elections for aldermen, school trustees and police commissioners.

Its members consider that sufficient attention has not been given to the point of view of labor by the past and present civic representatives. They believe that direct representation in these offices is necessary and with this object in view a meeting will be held in the Green Block, Room 16, on Friday at 8 p.m., when an open discussion will deal with the question.

Minimum Wage Planned for Men

Would Be Primarily for Lumber Employees, But With Possibilities of Extension

Introduction of a minimum wage bill for men is planned by Major H. J. Hurds, Independent member for Alberni, and will probably be brought down early in the session, according to supporters of the proposed measure.

While designed especially for those employed in the lumber industry, it is proposed to make the bill wide enough in its scope to include other industrial employees. The basis of the proposed legislation is that a minimum wage for men of forty cents an hour be compelled by statute.

The measure, it is reported, will be designed along lines similar to the minimum wage bill for women, which was brought into effect by the Liberal administration some years ago, and it is expected that the efforts of the Independent member will meet with considerable support on both sides of the House.

On Thursday the Government will meet a delegation from the Trades Congress of Canada, B.C. section, in respect to suggestions for further labor legislation. The delegation will ask for the increasing of the total disability and pension amounts to $75 a month, and a higher percentage of wages for injured workmen under the Workmen's Compensation Act, extension of the Mothers' Pension Act to include widows without children, and the application of the minimum wage law for boys.

Educated Horse and His Owner Featured

Fred Thompson and Wonderful Equine Screened at Columbia
in "Wild Bull's Lair"

Featuring a battle between a wild bull and the hero, in which the latter overcomes the infuriated animal,
Fred Thompson's latest F. B. O. picture is generally acclaimed as the best and the most unusual he has ever made. It is a unique story with a supernatural element in it not easy to catch with the camera; but the spirit of unearthing fear which broods
over the cattle country because of the supposition that "The Wild Bull's Lair" is haunted, and the alluete shots of the Wild Bull following his screaming challenge from the desolate height, have the desired effect
and give the production a mysterious atmosphere which it would be hard to duplicate. The picture, which is called "The Wild Bull's Lair," is replete with action and distinctive from start to finish. Thompson's great horse, Silver King, plays a prominent part in this breathless drama, and assists materially in the many comedy touches which relieve its intense tone. The cast is excellent, and the direction beyond cavil. "The Wild Bull's Lair" will be shown locally for the first time on the screen at the Columbia Theatre beginning today.

CAPITOL The screen's greatest THEATRE fighter is Milton Sills.
Sills' movie career has been just one fight after another the last few years. And in "The Knockout," which is now showing at the Capitol Theatre, he acts his biggest physical encounter. Sills surpasses any of his former efforts, having John Kolb, a six-foot-seven-inch Titan as his opponent, battling furiously in the turbulent waters of a Canadian river
during the break of a log jam. Sills was badly bruised and nursed a black eye for several days as a result of his hectic physical exertions in this fight.

DOMINION Von Stroheim filmed THEATRE "The Merry Widow" singing make-up. With the exception of a few female members of the cast, the players did their own singing and dancing. Von Stroheim's theory is that grease paint hinders an actor from expressing his inner feelings. He has another reason for his policy. "The Merry Widow,"
which is now showing at the Dominion
Theatre, includes Mae
Murray, John Gilbert, Roy D'Arcy, Tully Marshall, George Fawcett, Josephine Crowell and Dale Fuller.

PLAYHOUSE Some of the most THEATRE elaborate interior sets
used in a long time
for a motion picture give a brilliant background for the action in "Fifth Avenue Models." Universal-Jewel
starring Mary Philbin, and now showing at the Playhouse Theatre. The cast includes such favorites as Norman Kerry, Rose Dione, Rosemary Theby, Josef Swickard, Jean Herschelt, Roth Stonehouse and Betty Francisco. Svend Gade directed from "The Best of Life," an English best seller by Muriel Hine.

Blossom Time Operetta Will Appear at Royal Thursday, Nov. 19

News of interest to playgoers of this city comes in the announcement of the appearance of "Blossom Time,"
the charming operetta which created such a furore in New York during its run of more than two years, and which the Messrs. Schubert will present here at the Royal Victoria Theatre for a three-day engagement, commencing Thursday, Nov. 19. The story of this play, with music, is based upon the life of Franz Schubert. The scene is laid in Vienna. Shortly after the death of Schubert there was published a novel based on an incident in his life. Out of this material grew a highly successful musical piece from the hands of Willner and Reichart, in which was introduced melodies from Schubert. Dorothy Donnelly has entirely rewritten the fable and has supplied a new set of lyrics. The music is from melodies by Franz Schubert
and H. Berté, adapted by Sigmund Romberg.

Storm of Applause Greets Violinist

Efrem Zimbalist Appears in First of Ladies' Musical Club Recitals at Royal Victoria

Efrem Zimbalist, the Russian violinist who last night at the Royal Victoria Theatre opened the Ladies'
Musical Club professional season, achieved the enviable distinction of arriving before his audience at an almost unknown quantity and leaving the stage finally amid scenes of demonstrative enthusiasm which left no doubt whatever that he had made a supreme triumph. With the knowledge that at least one of the remaining two in the club's 1925-26 series has demonstrated her popularity with local music lovers, the season promises to be one of the most memorably successful in the society's history.

Zimbalist proved himself one of the greatest of the virtuosos of the violin who has been heard here. He has flawless execution, so amazing that it makes facility of things which to one ordinary violinist are well-nigh impossible of performance. He is also a master of technique and pleases the critical ear by the pure legitimacy of his playing. At no point did he betray any tendency to gain effects at the cost of finesse in detail. And always he plays with authority, elegantly, with tone which is beautifully various, luxuriantly smooth and rich, or delicately ingratiating. There is peculiar charm in his accent and characteristic rhythm. His manner
on the stage was particularly pleasing,
showing a quiet dignity and reserve
which suggested a fine temperamental poise. In his accompanist, Emanuel Ray, he had the support of a musician who is apparently a great artist at the piano.

His Programme
The programme opened with the Paganini-Kreisler "Frascaudum and Allegro," which at once displayed the strong virile tone and the pure legiti-

may of the artist's style. The great number of his programme, judged as violin literature, followed immediately. It was the Lalo "Symphonie Espagnole," of which the noble andante movement, exhibiting the most beautiful tone colors, and the final allegro movement, with its passionate enthusiasm, were the most strikingly beautiful. As an encore to this demonstratively received performance
he played the well-known "Salut d'Amor," which again won him much applause.

Second Part
In the second part of his programme Zimbalist gave a series of appealing things, two of which he had to repeat: his own arrangement of Glinka's "Persian Song," an il-lustratively fanciful thing in which the greater delicacy of tone, nuance and phrasing were heard; and Percy Grainger's "Molly on the Shore," which was perfectly captivating in its delicate gaiety, mischievousness and spirit. The rhythm which made so many of his numbers supremely delightful was especially apparent in this, and it was one of the things in which he showed to supreme advantage his ability to project a picture
on the mind of the listener.

There was infinite taste and keen artistic feeling in the interpretation of the "Liebeslied," the first occasion, so far as can be recalled, on which he used the viola. The arrangements for violin of two Chopin numbers, a nocturne and valse, were much enjoyed, the first played with sonorous grace; the latter, repeated as an encore, played with dainty gusto.
The storm of applause which greeted the last number, "Ronde des Lutins" by Basini, an exhibition of violin pyrotechnics, resumed after each of the three succeeding encores,
Auer's "Valse Bluettes," the Drigo-Auer "Les Millieres d'Arlequin," and "Perennata," by d'Ambrosio. Any one of these might have taken its place on the programme so far as the appeal
with the audience was concerned.

Players' Club, will well remember the

Cast Unusually Talented

The Players' Club of the Victoria College has commenced its activities for the year. The officers for the coming season were elected by the students at a recent meeting with the following results: President, Miss Helen Hayward; secretary-treasurer,

MISS HELEN HAYWARD

Miss Margaret Law; business manager, Mr. S. Siverts; arts '28 representative, Miss Audrey Tooley; arts
'29 representative, Mr. K. McAllister.
In the selection of officers the Players' Club of the College has been singularly fortunate. Miss Helen Hayward, the star of last year's successful play, "Quality Street," is a fine actress and has admirable executive qualities.

Mr. Siverts should prove to be a very able business manager, for it was due, in part, to his untiring efforts as stage manager that the High School play, "The Merchant of Venice," was such a splendid success two years ago. Mr. McAllister, too, will prove invaluable to the executive after his experience as secretary of the Students' Council of the Victoria
High School last year.

of the cast, and especially by Miss Hayward and Miss Peggy Law, both of whom will be members of this year's cast.

The club has been very fortunate in securing the services of Mrs. Goddard once again for the training and coaching of the players. Mrs. Goddard is well known in literary and dramatic circles in Victoria, both for her excellent acting talent and her able managing and training of play casts. At a meeting of the club on Tuesday, November 10, Mrs. Goddard was introduced to the assembled members by Miss Hayward, the president. Mrs. Goddard then outlined roughly the plans for the coming year.

"I have practically decided upon a play, although I am not at liberty to say just at present what it is," she told the students. "It is of the Shakespearean age, but it is not Shakespearean, that is, it is not one of Shakespeare's plays."

Mrs. Goddard said the play was rather an unusual one and that it had never been played in Canada,
and but once in the United States.
"It is old," she said. "In fact it is so old that it has become new. It is something unfamiliar to us and for that very reason it should prove the more interesting."

Will Be Rather Novel
A production of this character will be a decided novelty, especially when presented by students of an educational institution in Victoria. If the play in question is produced, the Players' Club of the Victoria College will be creating something of a precedent in the annals of the College.

The attendance at this meeting was the best in the history of the Players' Club. A goodly number of last year's players are back and much talent has been brought in by the students from the Victoria High School. With the strong combination and Mrs. God-dard's able coaching the play this year ought to please its audiences
more than any other amateur performance for some years. By doing so the Players' Club will be creating a new chapter in the history and traditions of its sole connection with the University of British Columbia—
the Victoria College.

El Dorado of Future

LONDON, Nov. 11.—Viscount Cowdray gave a dinner last night in honor of Edmond Ovey, on his appointment
as minister plenipotentiary to Mexico
to celebrate the resumption of diplomatic relations between Great Britain and Mexico. Many of those attending the dinner are closely identified with Mexican affairs. Lord Cowdray, in toasting the new minister, characterized Mexico as the "El Dorado of the future, whose wealth has not yet been touched."

Chemical Expert Talks on Means To Convert Fuel

Question of Conserving Natural Products Discussed at Meeting of Associations Held in New York

In New York was held recently meetings of the American Chemical Society, the Technical Association of Pulp and Paper Industries, the American Ceramic Society and the National Association of Finishers and Cotton Fabrics.

The exposition had as its principal feature a Court of Chemical Achievement, designed to bring together in one group the outstanding developments of recent years in chemical processes, products, instruments and equipment. No foreign products were admitted, and the display was thus a complete epitome of American advancement in this most important line.

Dr. Charles F. Roth, one of the managers of the exposition, observed that chemists of the present day are particularly interested in the problem of conserving natural products, such as fuel, which are being steadily diminished and must, at the present rate, in time be completely used up.

Coal and Lumber

"When the existing stocks of coal and petroleum have been exhausted," says Dr. Roth, "millions of years would be required to replace them by natural processes. In the case of the forests there is, of course, a remedy. Reforestation, though a slow and tedious process, yields results. But no matter how intensively that may be carried on it cannot replace coal as a fuel. In this age of industry the manufacturing plants of one great city would devastate huge areas of heavily timbered land day by day. Industry would virtually cease were it necessary to depend on the world's supply of wood for furnishing heat and power.

"What, then, is the answer to the problem of the exhaustion of the three greatest natural resources that nature has stored up for the benefit of mankind? Will humankind some day face extinction through freezing, the cessation of industry through inability to create power and the attendant evils that would result from the exhaustion of coal and petroleum?

Satisfactory Substitutes

"Creative chemistry says 'no' and says it emphatically, even though the substitutes have not yet been perfected. Whenever a gift of nature has been in danger of exhaustion science has either produced it synthetically or has sought for and found a satisfactory substitute. Chemistry has done more. It has taught methods of conservation that have been of infinite benefit to mankind.

"To the lay mind coal is simply coal—anthracite or bituminous—to be burned for the production of three common essentials—heat, light and power. In the eye of the chemist it is vastly more than that. The chemical expert sees the hard, black lump as a liquid. If he so desires to transform it, or as a mass of scintillant colors, if he cares to extract its luminous hues.

"Revolutionary changes in the preparation and use of coal as fuel is the answer of the chemist to the fear that industrial expansion may use up the world's supply before a satisfactory substitute has been evolved. Working hand in hand, science has proved that coal in powdered form can create greater energy than a similar amount in a lump, and engineering practice has furnished the method of combustion. German savants have proved that coal can be converted into liquid hydrocarbons; and though the initial process is expensive there is little doubt that refinement will make the idea commercially practicable.

Turning Coal to Gas

"Systems have been devised for the complete gasification of coal. Science foresees the day when coal will be distributed for the use of industry converted to gas at the mines and through high pressure mains. Steam pressures have been safely advanced from 500 pounds to nearly 1,500 pounds to the square inch in the last three years, conserving coal in that ratio.

"Turned to another use through the marvels of creative chemistry, the homely lump of coal becomes the basis of a rainbow of colors. The work of the silkworm in its cocoon and the labor of the miner underground combine to form the soft brilliantly colored silks that women love. Most of the dyes used in this modern age are derived from coal-tar, making silk a delight to the eye as well as to the touch.

"While the chemist has been devising ways and means of conserving coal he has been busy in another direction in the effort to make the most effective use of the diminishing supply. After decades of research the time is at hand when oxygen, the supporter of combustion, will be as cheap by the ton as coal is today. When that comes it will mean a revision of blast furnace practice and many other operations in general metallurgy. It should raise the quality and heating power of industrial gas.

Startling Discoveries Made

"Chemical research has demonstrated not only the exact components of the air we breathe, but it has gone millions of miles afield and determined also the composition of the stars. Botanists asserted that it was impossible to produce a synthetic fibre, and chemistry answered with artificial silk. Air used to be a permanent gas. Impossible of liquefaction. Today liquid air is a commonplace in industry.

"Not so long ago it was believed that the atmosphere contained only oxygen and nitrogen, with minor proportions of vapor and carbon dioxide. Patient research has demonstrated the existence also of five other gases: argon, helium, neon, krypton and xenon. Vastly important uses

Mainland Rates Are Granted on Island Lumber

Great Northern Railway Company Removes Arbitrary
on Product of Chemainus and Other Points

Plan Ferry Service Here

Mainland rates on eastbound lumber have been granted Vancouver Island by the Great Northern Railway, and the establishment of a large ferry service from Victoria to the Mainland by the same company is likely, according to telephone messages received from Mayor J. Carl Hendry in Vancouver yesterday.

Mr. M. J. Costello, G.N.R. Western traffic manager, announced yesterday that instructions had been given to the transcontinental freight traffic bureau to change the rate on lumber eastbound from Chemainus (Jones Bay and Sidney to points covered in Transcontinental Tariff District No. 117 and District No. 246).

"This," Mayor Hendry said yesterday, "means that the Coast rates are now applicable to Vancouver Island points. It means that other lines will have to conform with the equalization of rates that the Great Northern has made." It will mean that Vancouver Island lumber will go to every point in the United States practically at the same freight rate cost as it would from Vancouver.

Boon to Mills
Mayor Hendry stated that Captain Frank York, well known here, would probably operate the large service between Victoria and the Mainland if the railway company decided to establish such a one. The lowered rates and the establishment of ferry service would prove a tremendous boon to the Island mills, he said.

Granting of Mainland rates by the Great Northern would probably be the precursor of similar reductions by other railway lines, Mayor Hendry declared.

It is likely, too, that more mills will be established on the Island as Mainland plants now cutting Island timber will probably find it more economical to operate at the source of supply than to tow log booms to Vancouver or New Westminster.

Is Victory for Island
The arbitrary rate on Vancouver Island lumber bound for the East varies from one and a half to three cents per 100 lbs., which has formed a severe handicap on the mills of the Island in competition with Mainland mills.

Granting of Mainland rates is hailed as a great victory for the Island. Lumber and business interests have been fighting for the concession for many years now. Some years ago it was reported that the Canadian Pacific Railway Company was ready to co-operate with the other railroads in removing the arbitrary, but nothing further was done at the time.

Educationist Raps Political Speeches

Both Language and Themes
Pitiable, Canadian Education Association Told

OTTAWA, Nov. 11.—"We are passing through what might be called the cult of ugliness," declared Dr. G. W. Parmelee, director of Protestant education, Quebec, during his presidential address opening the twelfth meeting of the Canadian Education Association here.

He severely scolded many modern tendencies towards slang in speech, ugliness in pictorial art, modern forms of dancing, jazz music, and he was particularly critical in his comment on the platform performances of political candidates during the past two months. As regards the last named, the speaker made it plain he was not speaking in any party political sense.

Dr. Parmelee said the political speeches of the last few months had been most pitiable. As to discussions of problems with which Canada is faced they had been absolutely pitiable, he repeated.

Dr. Parmelee reviewed educational theories and practices during his address, and finally declared that it seemed to him time for a thorough revision of school courses so that "we may make our practice harmonize more with our theories."

New Charges Laid In Abduction Case

Robinson's Counsel Makes New Allegations Against Point
Grey Officials

VANCOUVER, Nov. 11.—Following the appearance in police court this morning of Reeve J. A. Paton and Police Commissioner H. E. McCraney, of Point Grey, in answer to summonses issued last Wednesday on information sworn to by Oscar B. V. Robinson, charging the two officials and three others with conspiracy in connection with the kidnapping of Wong Foon Sing, it was announced that two additional charges of the same nature have been laid against Reeve Paton and Mr. McCraney by J. E. Bird, who defended Robinson in the kidnapping case. The new information covers different phases of the original charge.

In addition to Reeve Paton and Mr. McCraney, the other three accused are M. B. Jackson, Mrs. F. H. Stratton and David Patterson, the last two mentioned formerly connected with the Council of Scottish Macclees, also appeared in police court this morning. All five were remanded until Friday.

K.K.K. Plan Debut In Montreal Soon

MONTREAL, Nov. 11.—The local branch of the Canadian Ku Klux Klan, numbering about 100 members, will, it is reported, unless something happens to prevent it, hold its first meeting here December 1, probably in the outskirts of the city. Among the local members are doctors, lawyers, other professional men and many other citizens.

Belgium Turns Back Coal From Germany

British Product Found Cheaper Than Teuton Shipments Under Dawes Plan

BRUSSELS, Nov. 11.—Because Belgian consumers can obtain coal direct from British producers at a price cheaper than it costs the German Government to bring reparations shipments to Belgium, the Government has decided to suspend further shipments under the Dawes Plan, pending measures to prevent dumping.

According to the newspapers, 90,000 tons have already been rejected for which, under the existing arrangement, Germany must be paid one gold mark a ton. Negotiations regarding the matter are reported to have been opened between Brussels and Berlin.

Flyers Face Hidden Perils Until Currents Conquered

Lack of Knowledge of Winds and Other Restless Forces Declared Cause of Many Disasters—Aerial Charts Needed by Aviators

(By Dr. Arthur Selwyn Brown)
The destruction of the Shenandoah drew attention to the fact that, while engineers have made great progress in the construction and equipment of various types of flying machines, scientists have done very little in studying the physics of the air. Centuries of investigations and studies have resulted in the charting of the oceans and seas, and some progress has been made in a systematic study of oceanography, tidal phenomena and in the meteorological conditions of the sea. The physics of the air is a subject that has attracted but scant attention. There is a vast realm in the atmosphere where physical, magnetic and electrical forces are constantly operating on a colossal scale about which we know comparatively little.

When airmen, like those in naval planes who were with the MacMillan expedition in the Arctic, or those who endeavored to fly from San Francisco to Honolulu, leave the land they, like Cook and Magellan long ago, pass into totally unknown and uncharted regions. Until the world's atmosphere is fully studied, explored and mapped, aviators must take their lives in their hands, like the early sea and land explorers, and risk all the varied adventures the physical elements of the air may prepare for them.

Danger Marks Aviation
Until we understand the physics of the air, aviation must continue to be a dangerous pursuit, and we must expect accidents and disasters to occur in proportion to the number of flying machines in use. The great need of the day is not more flying machines and airplanes, but more knowledge of the physics of the air; a mapping of the storm tracks on sea and land; a method for predicting the courses of air currents, and a broad understanding of atmospheric magnetism and electricity.

Meteorologists have studied the physics of cyclones and anticyclones, the causes of monsoons, typhoons and tropical storms; the effects of land and sea temperatures; connection, precipitation and many other conditions of the atmosphere near the surface. As a result of knowledge gained in this manner, it is possible to predict weather conditions in any given district with fair accuracy, several days in advance. But this knowledge is of little use to an aviator, because when he rises several hundred feet above the surface of the land, sea, or sky, he reaches zones of new and rapidly changing physical conditions, and adventures into a new and uncharted world.

Vast Circular Vortex
Norwegian meteorologists have pointed out that the general circulation of the atmosphere is due to a vast circular vortex set in motion by the heat generated at the equator. Professor Bjerknes has shown that the Polar air flows at the surface of the earth toward the equator and above this, at variable heights, the warm equatorial air flows toward the poles. The excessive heat at the equator over-compensates radiation and causes vast columns of air to ascend into the atmosphere. This air drifts to the poles. It is acted upon by radiation during its long journey and on reaching the poles is cooled. Here we may see an endless cycle of air movements set into action at the equator and pulled back into activity again when they come to rest at the Polar regions by the same active force that set them in motion. This appears to be a good example of the type of perpetual motion that multitudes of inventors have dreamed of. These great primary air trends when plotted on a map of the globe should show prevailing movements of the air from the poles toward the equator near the earth and sea and from the equator to the poles in the upper regions of the atmosphere.

Air Effects Defined
Glancing at any normal wind map of the world we may find that this is not strictly true. The lower air is turned about by a multitude of cyclonic movements with an easterly or westerly trend, according to the part of any zone studied. These cyclic movements are secondary phenomena due to other forces. The planetary vortex is, perhaps, one of the most important of these. The earth's rotation deflects the southerly upper air currents towards the east in northern latitudes and develops the anti-trade winds in the southern latitudes. The northerly air currents are deflected by the earth's rotation and cause the easterly trade winds. There is an atmospheric area of great importance existing between these two great air-layer movements which is called the sliding surface or surface of discontinuity. This, roughly speaking, slides upwards to the poles from the equator in each hemisphere a surface circulation is caused by the temperature differences of the two moving air zones and thus cyclic circulation is modified. These boundaries may be situated on surfaces of discontinuity at any given point. Around Greenland and the Antarctic continental front are the Polar cooling grounds where the warm equatorial currents are cooled down and carried back to the equator by outflowing Polar air. Easterly surface winds at the poles and westerly upper currents are the result of a discontinuity known as the Polar sliding surface.

Sliding Surfaces
Similar sliding surfaces are developed over many parts of the land and sea by peculiar local physical conditions, such as an excessive warming of the air in a valley or over a desert region or the deflection of a moving air stream by high mountain peaks. The majority of American storms pass over the country eastward from Alaska. They are deflected by many of the river valleys and most of them head for the mouth of the St. Lawrence River and then cross into the Atlantic.

A year ago the British meteorological Office carried on experiments with the view of measuring the vertical wind currents in the lowest layers of the atmosphere during sea breezes along the sea shores. Numerous small balloons were released from a floating station off the shore and the rising speeds and courses were measured with a theodolite. The conclusions arrived at, at the end of the experiments, were that, on the south coast of England the sea breeze is generally less than 500 feet high, but sometimes attains double the height. The maximum velocity of air found was 800 feet per minute and the maximum downward velocity was 150 feet per minute. The air appeared to have a descending tendency from aloft to below. The general trend of the air was from above down to the water surface a short distance from the shore, then toward the land, where it became deflected upward again on striking cliffs and hills. This indicated that the coastal sea breezes follow cyclic paths and are parts of a long train of waves that touch the sea and land, rebound into the air and then come back to the land.

Land and Sea Coast Breezes
There is no reason for believing that land breezes differ from the sea coast breezes in this respect. There appear also to be various types of wind waves. Cyclonic storms in Europe are found to move in groups of four, with a duration period for each cyclonic wave of six and a half days. A similar storm periodicity has been determined in Australasia. The southerly buster of New South Wales, the pampero of Argentina and other fast-gathering winds of this type belong to the linked-cyclone variety.

The permanent winds are those found at high altitudes circulating from the poles to the equator and around again. These are distorted by the earth's rotation, by magnetic and electric storms, and probably, by some of the more violent earth storms like the cyclones of the United States, the simoon and typhoon. The periodic winds include the monsoons, of the Indian seas; land and sea breezes, and steady local winds like the afternoon breeze blowing down the Pacific coast to the American and Australian coasts. The non-periodic winds are those like the hurricanes of the tropics, the typhoon of the Mediterranean, the typhoon of the China Seas, the simoon of the deserts of Arabia, Persia and Africa, the chinook of the Winnipeg States, the mistral of Europe, and the blizzards, tornados and hot winds of America.

Great Circulation Systems
There are always three great circulation systems operating in each hemisphere and these descend upon each other like a system of cogged wheels. There is the high-moving Polar-equator system transferring equatorial warm air to the poles, the easterly surface winds in the northern latitudes and their component westerlies which develop surfaces of discontinuity, or sliding surfaces which all airmen are so familiar with and utilize for climbing and gliding. For aviation purposes we only know about the minor elements of these great circulating bodies. Meteorologists have studied the land winds and cyclones and utilize their knowledge in making daily weather forecasts, and British investigators have lately found that the vertical currents in land breezes have important effects in aviation in several ways.

A British meteorologist has suggested a world-wide mapping of thunder storm areas. He proposes developments of observing stations in every 200 square miles of territory. Investigations of thunderstorm frequencies show that they are closely associated with atmospheric electrical storms. It is found that when the earth's surface is divided up into a million squares of 200 miles each that 44,000 thunderstorms a day occur, or 16,000,000 per year.

1,800 Thunderstorms
The average duration of these storms in an hour, and at any given minute in the day or night there are 1,800 thunderstorms in progress in some parts of the world. When they are studied and their frequencies and paths of travel are mapped, the knowledge will be of greater value to aviation.

Air motions are chiefly due to differences in temperature or to temperature and humidity. The maintenance of a difference of temperature between parts of the same surface in a fluid, such as air or water, necessarily maintains a permanent move-

Appointed Assistant Treasurer C.P.R.

MR. A. E. SHAVE

Announcement is made by Mr. I. G. Ogden, vice-president in charge of finance, Canadian Pacific Railway, of the appointment of Mr. A. E. Shave as assistant treasurer of the company. Mr. Arthur Edward Shave has been in the employ of the Canadian Pacific Railway since August 18, 1908, when he was appointed clerk in the office of the treasurer. He became assistant chief clerk in that office in June, 1915, and was promoted chief clerk in January, 1919. From this position he is raised to the position of assistant treasurer.

ment in that fluid, and the heating or cooling of a fluid at an internal boundary also will maintain a permanent movement, no matter where these boundaries may be situated. Here is a great principle that will shed much light on the physics of the atmosphere when they are studied. How many sources of wind heating are known? They appear innumerable. Radiation, convection, the direct heat of the sun, reflection hot springs, gases and volcanic heat are some of the agencies co-operating in heating air and in promoting circulation systems.

A wonderful field for investigation lies in the study of atmospheric electricity. Thunderstorms result from violent electrical discharges; the aurora and other similar light displays, lightning, radio static and many other manifestations show that electric and magnetic currents are always moving.

Cause of Green Coloration

The predominant green coloration in auroral displays is due to helium, hydrogen and other gases liberated by the electric charges. It has not been determined whether nitrogen or helium predominates in the upper air. It is suggested that nitrogen is the commoner element in the upper air and this is greatest around the Heavyside layer of the radio limits. Aviators meet with many deceptive optical phenomena in the sky. Among the perspective phenomena are the staircases in the clouds. When a cloudbank is approached there seems to be a perfect stairway leading to the upper surfaces. The convergence and divergence of auroral streams and crepuscular rays, like the sunbeams drawing water through the clouds after a storm, are commonly witnessed. The arching of clouds and cloud bands and the changing of shapes and positions by the sun, moon and stars are among the commonest of the perspective aberrations met with. Refractive phenomena are more numerous and troublesome.

Sir Napier Shaw, the distinguished British meteorologist, convened an international commission for the investigation of the upper air, which met in London, between April 17 and 22, this year. This is a voluntary association of scientists, who realize the importance of air studies. But the problems of the physics of the air are too large, numerous, pressing, and from their aviation aspects too economically valuable to be left to a handful of scientists. They should become pre-occupations of national, state and local government bodies to solve.

Wrap up warm inside

On a raw winter's day you wouldn't venture out without a good overcoat to keep out the cold. But your inside wants keeping warm as well.

Make a practice of drinking BOVRIL regularly during the winter months. It keeps up your vitality and helps you to resist colds, chills and influenza.

Hot BOVRIL Puts Beef into you

Innumerable observations are needed before the upper atmosphere can be mapped and charted like the sea and before airplane and airship routes can be marked out. There should be state governmental and municipal observation stations in every organized district in the world contributing aid. This must inevitably take place before air navigation can be made safe and be placed on an economic foundation. The sooner attention is focussed on the national importance of this work of learning about the physical peculiarities of the upper air of all districts, the sooner this work will be undertaken. Educational campaigns are now needed for it everywhere.

Lumber can now be artificially seasoned in three days.

Gold and Silver Ore Found at Kennedy Lake

Good Canning Season Is Reported at Clayquot Sound—Pilchards Follow Salmon Run

Farewell Dance Is Held

TOFINO, Nov. 9.—The Clayquot Sound Canning Company has suspended salmon canning operations for the present year, during which the company put up 16,000 cases, of which 3,000 were sockeye, and the balance were spring, coho and old salmon. The company is at present engaged in canning pilchard, an industry which it intends to pursue as long as the fish are obtainable.

William Spittal, an old West Coast prospector, has recently returned from the Elk River, Kennedy Lake, district, with several samples of good gold and silver ore having been taken to $50 a ton, the 120 specimens being taken from a vein six feet wide, and the 437 samples from a fifteen-foot vein, both mineral formations being traced for several thousand yards along the mountain side. An attempt was made to develop the mineral deposits of the Elk River district many years ago, but owing to inaccessibility and lack of transportation facilities, it was finally abandoned, and has remained unexploited ever since. But now, as the proposed extension of the Canadian Transcontinental Highway from Sproat Lake to Long Beach will traverse the very centre of this rich mineral zone, and afford it every facility for direct transportation, mining men are beginning to manifest a re-awakened interest in the district.

Ladysmith Keeps Armistice Day

Joint Service Is Held at Memorial at Head of Gatacre Street by Veterans and Citizens

LADYSMITH, Nov. 11.—A large gathering assembled at the monument on First Avenue to attend the Armistice service, which was solemnized at 10:45 a.m., today. The Rev. H. B. Hobbins opened the service with the singing of the hymn "O God, Our Help in Ages Past," and a short address, which was most appropriate. The Rev. Edwin Moss, assisted in prayer. At two minutes to eleven the bells rang and the two minutes for silent prayer was observed when Comrade Fiege stepped back and gave the call of the "Last Post." The children and teachers of the high school, also the public school, were in attendance, and a good number of the veterans met to pay their respects to their comrades who had paid the supreme sacrifice. Rev. W. Graham presided at the conclusion of the service, at the conclusion of which the National Anthem was sung. The monument was beautifully decorated for the occasion, the laurel wreath being in prominence.

Ladysmith Personal News

LADYSMITH, Nov. 11.—A large number of members of the K. P. Lodge of Ladysmith journeyed to Nanaimo on Monday evening to be in attendance at the silver anniversary of the order which was being held there. A most enjoyable time was spent. Miss Eleanor Dinale, of Victoria, is the guest of Miss Dorothy Reed for the Thanksgiving holiday. Mr. and Mrs. Urquhart, of Comox, are visiting at the home of their daughter, Mrs. W. Aikenhead. The Ladysmith Chapter of L.O.D.E. convened at the home of Mrs. Geo. Rose on Tuesday afternoon and arrangements were made to hold a poppy and tag day on Saturday next, November 14.

PAINS ACROSS THE BACK

Relieved by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Mitchell, Ontario.—"I have taken your medicine for a number of years. I do not take it steadily all the time but I am never without it. I always keep it in the house. I took it first for pains in the abdomen and bearing-down pains, headaches and pains across the back. I have my home to look after and many a day I could not get up at all. I saw the advertisement in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and Mrs. John Miller told me about it, too. Every time I take it, it makes me feel better and I always recommend it to my friends. I am willing to answer letters from women asking about this medicine and you may use this letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. F. J. WASSMAN, Mitchell, Ontario.

The merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is told by women to each other. Many women know by experience what this medicine will do and they are anxious for others to know. Such testimony should cause any woman suffering from the troubles so common to her sex to give this well-known medicine a fair trial.

Do you know that in a recent canvass among women users of the Vegetable Compound over 220,000 replies were received. To the question, "Have you received benefit by taking this medicine?" 98 per cent. replied "Yes." This means 98 out of every 100 women are in better health because they have given this medicine a fair trial.

Pretty Wedding Is Held at Nanaimo

NANAIMO, Nov. 11.—St. Paul's Church was the scene of a pretty wedding on Monday at 1 p.m., when the Rev. N. Hyatt officiated at the marriage of Miss Myrtle Hough, youngest daughter of Mrs. Hough and the late John Hough, and Mr. Hugh Morrow, only son of Mr. and Mrs. H. Morrow, both of the contracting parties being residents of the city.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her brother, Mr. J. W. Hough, was attired in a gown of navy blue crepe trimmed with circular flares of tulle lace and touches of velvet, with which she wore a hat to match. She carried a shower bouquet of bridal roses and fern. Miss Jane Hough attended her sister, and wore a becoming dress of henna crepe de Chine with hat of the same hue. Her bouquet was composed of carnations and fern. Mr. Wilfred Wardill accompanied the groom.

At the close of the ceremony a reception was held at the home of the bride's mother, the couple leaving later on a honeymoon tour of Sound Cities. On their return they will take up their residence in the city.

Duncan Marks Armistice Day

War Memorial Is Scene of Fitting Ceremonial, Representative of Cowichan Valley

DUNCAN, Nov. 11.—A big throng assembled around the war memorial cross here today for the Armistice Day service which was held at 11 o'clock, together with the observance of the two-minute silence. The gathering was representative not of Duncan alone, but of the entire district. Mayor J. I. Mutter and Reeve J. N. Evans, with representatives of the clergy, the city and municipal council, the Cowichan Great War Veterans, the Cowichan Chapter of the Phillips-Wolfe Chapter of the Imperial Order of the Daughters of the Empire, the Girl Guides and Brownies, the Boy Scouts and Cubs, pupils of the Duncan High School, Duncan Consolidated School and Queen Margaret School were there in a body and took up their positions closely adjacent to the cross.

The service was short and impressive. Rev. W. H. Gibson opened the service. The hymn "O God, Our Help in Ages Past" was sung, and the two-minute silence followed. Sentences, Rev. John R. Hewitt; prayers, Rev. Bryce Wallace; Scripture reading, Ven. Archdeacon Collison; the hymn, "The Supreme Sacrifice," was sung, and the Lord's Prayer and benediction by the Rev. P. Granville Christman, with the singing of the National Anthem completed the service. On the completion of the service many wreaths and tributes were placed around the memorial cross.

Nanaimo Council Delays Purchase

Two New Tires for Fire Trucks Occasions Discussion, But Action Laid Over

NANAIMO, Nov. 11.—At the City Council meeting last evening, the fire warden advised the purchase of two new tires for the fire trucks, but when the request came to be voted upon, three aldermen were against the purchase and three for it. Mayor Harrison, favoring Aldermen Cavaskey, Ironside and Hickman in waiting for one week, when a report will be submitted by the finance committee as to how much money remains for the fire warden to spend this year. Alderman Ferguson wanted to purchase the tires at once; also six caps for $15; the tires to cost $300. He said it was not safe to allow the trucks to run on poor tires, and if a fireman or driver were killed or hurt, the city might be in a bad position. Alderman Cavaskey, chairman of the finance committee, stated that there was only about eleven hundred dollars left for the fire warden, which would only pay the salaries of the firemen until the first of the year. He did not know where the money was coming from to buy new tires just now. The question was laid over for one week.

The warrant book for the month of October was brought down, and accounts totalling $23,491.93 were ordered paid.

The city engineer reported that the work on the cave-in on Nicol Street had been completed at a cost of approximately $12,100.

Sanitary Inspector Murdoch reported to the Council that he had inspected twenty-one dairies and found all in good shape. Twenty-five dirt tests had been made, and were before the Council for examination. In connection with the last statement, Alderman Plante suggested that these tests should be placed somewhere where the public could view them for themselves. Some of the samples he considered good, while others were a disgrace.

Wedding at Colwood

COLWOOD, Nov. 11.—A wedding of considerable local interest was solemnized in St. John's Church this afternoon, when the Rev. H. Pearson united Mr. Alfred Hankin, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. A. Hankin, of Happy Valley, to Miss Evelyn Margaret Dyer, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Dyer, of Dorchester, England. Mr. Wilfred G. C. Dyer gave the bride away and Miss Verne Dyer acted as bridesmaid. Mr. C. Whitney Griffiths, an old friend of the groom, was best man.

The bride was gowning in a beautiful champagne satin dress of Copenhagen and carried a beautiful bouquet of roses and asters. Mrs. Parmiter presided at the organ.

There was a large attendance of old friends from throughout the district at the ceremony. Mr. and Mrs. Hankin will reside in Happy Valley.

Five Hundred Parties

COLWOOD, Nov. 11.—The hall committee has organized a series of 500 parties to take place every Thursday evening in the Colwood Hall. The first of the series will be held tomorrow evening commencing at 8 o'clock. Prizes for the best scores will be given at the end of every month.

Comox to Have Potato Display At B.C. Fair

Board of Trade Is Asked to Co-operate With District Growers in Exhibit—Committee Is Struck

Pass Egg Duty Resolution

COURTENAY, Nov. 11.—At a meeting of the Courtenay-Comox Board of Trade, held in the City Hall on Tuesday night, there was a fair attendance of members. Mr. William Eadie, the president, was in the chair. The matter of a district agricultural representative for the Comox area was introduced by a letter from the Hon. E. D. Barrow, Minister of Agriculture in the Provincial House. Everyone present was in favor of such an office being established here as much benefit could be derived from such representative. Various suggestions were offered with a view to this end, in spite of Mr. Barrow having stated that the department had no intention of making the appointment. It was suggested that the district agriculturist at present stationed at Duncan be moved to Courtenay, while Duncan could easily be served direct from Victoria. It was said. Messrs. Duncan and Paul were appointed a committee to submit a resolution to Mr. P. P. Harrison, M.P.P., through his local committee. Representative potato growers of the district, in the persons of Messrs. R. H. Clark, H. P. Alberry, G. R. Bates and W. J. C. Hannah, were in attendance in connection with the forthcoming potato fair at New Westminster.

Mr. Bates proposed that the Board of Trade co-operate with the potato growers in staging a district potato display at the fair, which would be doubtless be attended by a large number of people. This, he thought, would be the kind of advertising the district needed. The Comox Valley contained the finest potato land in British Columbia, he alleged.

Mr. Alberry outlined the kind of exhibit that it was proposed to send, and thought more interest should be taken in the matter. There would be no difficulty in obtaining perfect specimens of the eight varieties required. The chairman assured the potato men that the Board of Trade would welcome farmers as members of the board. "We must co-operate with each other," he said. "We cannot work by ourselves." Messrs. Geo. W. Edwards and E. F. Thomas were appointed a committee of two to prepare the necessary properties for staging the exhibit.

Mr. W. A. B. Paul introduced a resolution regarding the duty on eggs coming into this country from the United States, which carried unanimously, and a copy of which is to be sent to the Federal member, Mr. A. W. Neil, at Ottawa.

He pointed out that the district was very well suited to poultry raising, which was a growing industry here, although as yet only in its infancy. It was going to grow enormously and should be encouraged so that it could take the place of the logging industry which was gradually getting farther and farther away.

Hayseed Hoe-Down Proves Success

PORT ALBERNI, Nov. 11.—Certainly the best dance to be given for some time was the Hayseed Hoe-Down staged by the Port Alberni Lodge of the I.O.O.F. Eika here on Monday night in the G.W.V.A. Hall. The hall was suitably decorated for the occasion with bunches of fruit and vegetables, while cowbells, scythes, milk cans and other farmyard accessories adorned the walls, and bales of hay were used as seats.

Rooney's six-piece orchestra supplied good music and in spite of the inclement weather which prevailed a large crowd was in attendance. One of the novelties of the evening was a scramble by the ladies, after a tubful of apples, which was made more interesting because some of the apples contained coins ranging in value from five cents to a five-dollar gold piece. Mrs. Ada Marshall was successful.

ACHES AND PAINS ARE SOON FIXED UP

Simple, easy treatment brings quick relief

Quick, sure relief from pain is what men want when they get lamed up from over-exercise or exposure, or when they get a sprain or bruise. A soldier in the Sixth Pennsylvania Infantry writes from camp: "Sloan's is a great thing for us boys in the army. After a stiff hike or drill your muscles are bound to ache, but they are soon fixed up with Sloan's. It's a great stuff for muscle-bound legs, lame backs, stiff necks, sprains or bruises."

The reason that Sloan's Liniment gives such remarkable relief is that it gets right at the cause of the pain. It stimulates the circulation throughout the place where the pain is, and clears out congestion.

Right away you feel relief. Stiff muscles limber up, the aching stops, and soon you are fit as ever. No need to rub. Sloan's does the whole job. Just pat it on! Get a bottle today. All druggists—35 cents.

careful in getting the gold piece. Among other features was the serving of refreshments at midnight from wheelbarrows and small hayracks. The evening was much enjoyed by all present.

Loses Three Foxes

NANAIMO, Nov. 11.—Mr. H. P. Vidal, of Yellow Point, recently lost three foxes, which escaped from his farm at that point. They are valuable animals, and Mr. Vidal is asking local hunters not to shoot them should they come across them. Mr. Vidal is offering a reward for their return to him.

Arbitrator Named

COURTENAY, Nov. 11.—At a special meeting of the Council held here last night for the purpose of furthering the matter of the expropriation of Mr. D. Roy's property to provide a lane at the back of Union Street, Mr. P. Leo Anderson was appointed arbitrator for the city of Courtenay. Mr. J. M. Mitchell, the city solicitor, was present in an advisory capacity. Mayor Wm. Duncan occupied the chair, and the aldermen present were Messrs. Cooke, Field, McKenzie and Macdonald. After some discussion it was decided that no further offer should be made to Mr. Roy, as it was thought that a very liberal offer had already been made by the city.
